Helping people understand horses and achieve their goals

Suzanne a horse lover from early childhood grew up in the country town of Tamworth, NSW. In those early days of being involved with horses she always felt there were no consistent answers to questions on horses behavior and safe, effective strategies to implement that the horse could easily understand.

After moving to the Hills District, she studied to become a teacher and gained her BA Dip Ed. She pursued her involvement with horses and need for knowledge by studying The Horse Management Course at Ultimo Technical College. Here the horse's physical well being and training was studied but there was no discussion about the psychology of the horse.

Her understanding of horse behavior developed to a new level when she studied Parelli Natural Horsemanship in the mid 90's and became an accredited instructor in 1999.

After 10 years furthering her education, teaching horsemanship and studying overseas with PNH, Suzanne now teaches in the Sydney region and locally in the Arcadia area where she runs a Natural Equestrian Center for teaching Natural Horsemanship.

Here she offers a supportive framework for learning Horsemanship, related horse management study areas and safe facilities for her students and their horses.
